

Brian A. Catlos (PhD Toronto: 2000) currently holds appointments as Professor of Religious Studies at the University of Colorado at Boulder and Research Associate in Humanities at the University of California Santa Cruz. He is a social historian whose work centers on Muslim-Christian-Jewish relations and ethno-religious identity in medieval Europe and the Islamic World, and the history of the pre-Modern Mediterranean. He co-directs The Mediterranean Seminar, a forum for international and interdisciplinary collaboration in the emerging field of Mediterranean Studies. In addition to many articles, he has written The Victors and the Vanquished: Christians and Muslims of Catalonia and Aragon, 1050–1300, Infidel Kings and Unholy Warriors: Power Faith and Violence in the Age of Crusade and Jihad (Farrar, Straus & Giroux, 2014), Muslims of Medieval Latin Christendom, 1050–ca. 1615 (Cambridge, 2014), and Kingdoms of Faith: A New History of Islamic Spain (Basic: 2018). Recent prizes and distinctions include his second National Endowment for Humanities Faculty Fellowship and two Awards from the Boulder Faculty Association: one for Excellence in Research, Scholarly, and Creative Work, and a second for Service to the Profession. Current projects include a textbook and document reader, The Sea in the Middle: The Mediterranean World, 650–1650 with alumni, Mark Meyerson and Tom Burman, which is scheduled for release in January 2022, Paradoxes of Plurality: Ethno-Religious Diversity and the Mediterranean Origins of the West, as well as other archivally-based projects.